

UDL for Administrators:

An Overview for Universal Design for Learning

Presenter: Mary Schillinger

UDL offers an instructional planning and delivery framework for meeting the needs of an increasingly diverse student population. Mary Schillinger will provide an overview of the UDL Framework through the lens of a supportive administrator. In this half-day training, she will establish both, the philosophical and practical foundation that creates a context for success within the core, general education curriculum and is the basis for level 1 instruction for Rtl and MTSS.

Mary Schillinger is the Assistant Superintendent for Education in Las Virgenes USD and oversees professional development and strategic planning for implementation of the Common Core State Standards for both general education and special education K-12 in her district. She began her career as a general education teacher and a special education resource teacher, before moving into administration serving in many capacities, including Director of Special Education. As a member of the faculty of California State University Northridge, Mary teaches courses in the special education teacher preparation and school psychology departments and has authored several publications.
